

AMERICAN KINESIOLOGY ASSOCIATION

Preamble

Kinesiology is the academic discipline which involves the study of physical activity and its impact on health, human performance, society, and quality of life. It includes, but is not limited to, such areas of study as exercise science, sports management, athletic training and sports medicine, socio-cultural analyses of sports, sport and exercise psychology, fitness leadership, physical education-teacher education, and pre-professional training for physical therapy, occupational therapy, medicine and other health related fields.

The American Kinesiology Association (AKA), founded in 2007, promotes and enhances kinesiology as a unified field of study and advances its many applications. AKA does this by advocating for kinesiology at national and international levels as well as by supporting its member departments by providing resource materials and leadership and educational opportunities for university administrators in kinesiology. The AKA Leadership Workshop, held annually in late January, provides kinesiology administrators and faculty an opportunity to discuss and explore emerging trends and challenges impacting the academic discipline of kinesiology and to strengthen leadership skills in managing our kinesiology departments and schools in higher education. The annual workshop brings together the largest assembly of kinesiology administrators focused on current issues related to leading and managing our departments and schools.

AKA does not solicit or accept individual memberships, rather it is a department-member organization. Departments of Kinesiology or academic units that house kinesiology programs (including programs in exercise science, sport studies, human performance, sport management, etc.) are invited to join AKA
